BRIEFLY

State

Church code: At the Sacred Heart Church in Dayton, if a member is seen wearing "immodest" clothing, they will be denied communion. Examples include shorts, mini-skirts and halter tops.

OSU informs: If you have questions, The Ohio State University has the answers. A new information service "hotline" can refer you to experts at the university who can answer the questions it cannot. Inquiries about agriculture, home issues and insects are among top concerns.

Prison preacher: Baptist preacher Gary Sims is convinced that there are no "bad" people in Ohio. Sims, the state director for Prison Fellowship Ministries visits the nine juvenile and 21 adult prisons in the state. "I see Christ in those people," he said of the inmates.

Surprise inspection: Milk will be the focus of a surprise inspection in all Ohio schools in the next few months, officials in Columbus say. During the last inspection in 1988, Borden, Inc., who supplies most of the milk, had to pay $4000 in fines for each carton not full.

Festive glasses: The three dimensional glasses made popular in 1950s movie houses are coming back to Marietta, O. At the Ohio River Sternwheel Festival, starting Sept. 8, spectators will be able to have a clearer view of the evening's fireworks.

Panicked by police: A 21-year-old Dayton man shot himself in his car when he was pulled over for speeding. Officials say that the police had not yet approached the vehicle when the young man shot himself. He is in critical condition.

Peace barn: The messages of the 1960s are still alive in Tiffin, O. according to Greg Akers. Akers, a 40-year old Vietnam veteran, has painted the side of his barn with peace symbols and anti-war slogans. One slogan, taken from a 1960s poster, included on the barn is "Peace is the one thing that makes sense."

Nation

"Crushed" citrus: The Proctor and Gamble Co. sold Crush International beverage operations to the London-based Cadbury Schweppes PCC for $220 million in order to concentrate on other products such as Folgers Coffee and Citrus Hill orange juice.

Haunting case: A Minneapolis 9-year-old girl, who died in a fire killing nine other people, may be able to help officials determine the cause of the fire. The girl kept a journal describing flickering lights and popping bulbs. She wrote that she thought the house was haunted.

Cattle cavalry: This weekend when you are in Roundup, Mont., do not be alarmed if you see 1,000 cattle coming toward you. These cattle represent 20 counties in Montana at the Great Montana Centennial drive.

Safety patrol: A recent poll has shown that more public schools are hiring police guards and introducing metal detectors. In New York City, 97 percent of the $60 million budget goes to safety measures. Other concerned communities include Chicago and cities in Virginia and Oklahoma.

Lines the limit: The playground at Sandpiper Shores Elementary School in Boca Raton, Fla. has been shortened because of a court order inspired by the parents of the children. Parents contend power lines, located 135 ft. from school grounds, containing 230,000 volts are hazardous to the kids' health. Until the court order had been obtained, parents banned the school.

Regents cut funds

by John Chalfant
Associated Press writer

COLUMBUS — An Ohio Board of Regents committee on Thursday began reviewing tentative staff plans for cuts in a $1 billion statewide list of construction requests submitted by public universities and colleges.

Consideration by the panel marked the first step in a process that will end in December when the regents submit a scaled-down package of new building and renovation projects to the Office of Budget and Management.

Regents Chancellor William Coulter would not disclose the size of the proposed spending package initially drafted by his staff.

During the last capital improvements budget cycle two years ago, the panel recommended about one-third of the roughly $1 billion sought. Higher education wound up with a $418 million allocation from the General Assembly in the current state construction budget.

Gov. Richard Celeste next year will submit a new construction bill for all state departments.

Food service alters plan

by James A. Tinker
staff reporter

Within a year the University's food coupon system will be replaced by a debit system using student ID cards with a magnetic strip.

"Food coupons are really kind of outdated in this day and age," said Jane Schimpf, Food Operations director.

The coupon system, instituted in 1971, was one of the first in the nation and instigated a popular trend in college food service, she said.

However, now the University is following the pattern of other institutions using similar debit systems, Schimpf said.

Students will be required to pay the amount they decide necessary for the semester — much like the decision-making process of purchasing coupon books.

Each time an individual uses the card to buy meals, the amount "spent" would be deducted from their account and the new balance would be displayed on a register at the point of sale, she explained.

It has not yet been decided what would be done if there were funds left in the account at the end of the semester, she said.

University Union Director David Crooks said some possibilities for dealing with unspent monies include refunds or using the funds to pay other bills.

Other possibilities are carrying the funds over to the next semester or notifying individuals that they must spend their balance or it will be kept by the University, he said.

The new system will speed up transactions at the cash register and significantly decrease bookkeeping activity Crooks said.

The proposal also "would end the anguish and anxiety" for students who have lost or could lose their coupon books, he said.

If a student loses his ID, the card could almost immediately be invalidated — whereas if a coupon book is lost the owner has little chance of keeping someone else from spending their money.

In addition, each dining hall or facility would have special cards that could be used at a nominal fee in such instances.

Crooks said students often do not consider their coupon books as being a form of currency, but rather "play money."

"The credit card and the plastic, in our society, seem to have a great deal more meaning to people," he said.

The elimination of food coupons will also end the food coupon market: a process whereby students with extra coupon books sell them at a rate much lower than the original. □ See Food, page 6.

U.S. drug strategy kept under wraps

by Bryna Brennan
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — Some sections of an emerging national drug strategy detail U.S. limits in attacking drug traffickers, growers and users, but will remain secret lest narcotics peddlers benefit from the information, an administration source said Thursday.

It had been learned previously that the revamped strategy President Bush will reveal next Tuesday will be tough on users, heavy on law enforcement and call for a new emphasis on treatment. Up to $260 million in economic and military aid will be sent to Colombia, Bolivia and Peru to stop cocaine at its South American origin, sources have said.

On Thursday, the administration source, discussing the strategy on grounds he not be named publicly, said that portions of the document will be classified.

"This would include any information that would give an advantage to the narcotics traffickers," he said.

"It's a war, and you don't give all your plans to the enemy. You don't want the narcotics traffickers to know what the limits are," the source said. "We can't let them know how far we would go before retaliation or how far before we pump more money in."

As an example, the source said, the United States would not make public the government's possible actions if assassinations continued against judicial officials in Colombia, where drug traffickers have killed scores of officials and vowed total war on the authorities currently conducting a major crackdown there.

The source said the plan's sections on intelligence operations also will be classified.

The document that Bush will unveil in his first nationally broadcast address from the White House draws from suggestions submitted to drug control chief William Bennett from agencies ranging from the National Security Council to the State Department.

Sections of the plan will remain classified that deal with precise areas of drug operations and strength of U.S. anti-drug forces overseas, the source said. Some portions dealing with strategies at home also will remain under wraps.

The plan attempts to lay to rest the political infighting among the various agencies involved in combating drugs. Sources say it calls for an increased role for the military, committing troops to more training of overseas forces and advising but stopping short of direct intervention.

The strategy, according to sources, delineates the overseas operations of the Drug Enforcement Administration, the State Department, which runs drug eradication programs, and the CIA, which gathers intelligence data.

The CIA set up a Counter Narcotics Center in April to "combine operational and analytical support to our country's fight against international drug trafficking," according to spokesman Bill Devine.

He said the plan is to unite the intelligence community — the Federal Bureau of Investigation, Defense Intelligence Agency, the National Security Agency, Customs and the DEA.

Attempts to stop the cocaine flow into the United States by working directly in South America were all but stopped earlier this year because of security threats to American personnel caused by leftist guerrillas operating in Colombia and Peru and a lack of concrete guidelines and cooperation among U.S. agencies.

At home, the crackdown on drug users calls for a program allowing judges to strip student loans and other federal benefits from drug offenders.

Fraternity chooses president for a day

by Jill Novak
staff writer

Walking around campus in the shoes of University President Paul Olscamp may be possible for one student or faculty member lucky enough to be the winner of a fraternity fundraiser.

Sigma Nu fraternity was inspired by a similar stunt from the fraternity's chapter at Ohio University, according to Duane Frager, a member of Sigma Nu and former chapter president.

"We wanted to design a fundraiser that would involve the entire campus and we heard about this and thought it would be a good idea," Frager said.

Such a fundraiser has never been done before at the University, he said.

Sigma Nu committee members said Olscamp was very receptive to the fraternity's idea and had no objections.

On the day of the switch, planned for Oct. 16, Olscamp and the winner will each receive a wake-up call from Steve Mason and Diane Scribner of 93Q FM, a Toledo radio station.

They will then attend a breakfast in their honor at the Sigma Nu house and following breakfast, Olscamp must go to all of the winner's classes.

"He cannot just sit in at the classes," Frager said. "He will have to take notes and do whatever work the student would have had to do."

Also, if the student has an on-campus job, he must take the student's shift.

The fraternity is especially hoping the winning student is one who normally drives to class because "we'd like to see the President try to find a parking spot," he said.

Sigma Nu sent a detailed proposal to Olscamp outlining the specifics of the plan. Frager said it gave the President a chance to construct a "fake" agenda.

But Olscamp wanted the winner of the contest to go through his real agenda, Frager said.

The winner's agenda for the day will include any meetings and conferences the President may have to attend, along with an open forum in which students have the chance to "eat lunch with the (pseudo) president."

Tickets for the fundraiser went on sale Tuesday, and 200 tickets have already been sold, Frager said. The $1 tickets can be purchased at a booth in the University bookstore.

Sigma Nu gave Olscamp the opportunity to decide where the proceeds would be donated, and he chose the Special Olympics.

Tickets for the fundraiser can be purchased until Sept. 29, and the winner will be picked in a drawing during halftime of the Sept. 30 football game.

Students seek 'major' goals

Assistance available for students changing career

by Shari L. Veleba
staff reporter

More than half of all University students go through a process of reconsidering their career goals.

Cynthia Colvin, assistant director of Academic Enhancement and Advising, said students should not fear being alone when switching majors.

"About 60 percent of all students change their major at least one time," she said.

College students go through many value changes, which can affect their interests, according to another University career counselor.

"The perception is that if you don't know what you want to be by your freshman year, there's something wrong with you," said John Queener, coordinator of the Counseling and Career Development Center.

"It is okay not to be sure of what you want to do," he said.

--John Queener, Counseling and Career Development Center coordinator

Personality is one of the biggest factors in making career choices.

Some people are the type who have a plan, stick to it, and need that structure, while others are more flexible — open to a multiplicity of interests," Queener said.

Other students are used to having decisions made for them or lack information about the options available to them, he said.

The instability of the economy further plays a role in career choices, he said, and fewer people are staying in one kind of work for long, 25-year careers.

Last year, 222 people sought career counseling at the CCDC office and more women than men came for help, he said.

"Men are less likely to say they need help," he said, explaining men think they can figure their problems out for themselves, when they only need basic advice.

Students who go to the Center for help with career decisions often face common dilemmas: frustration, lack of control and self-esteem, and fear of disappointing their parents, Queener said.

"Students become very frustrated (when they cannot decide what they want) and some contemplate dropping out," he said. "Making a career decision is not a one-time thing," Queener said. "It's a lifelong process — we know that by the number of people who are undecided."

CCDC offers a program for students called "Major Decisions," where academic advisers from all University departments explain courses involved with various majors.

"Reaching Your Major Goals," is a similar program scheduled for residence halls.

A third program to be held by CCDC and co-sponsored by several University offices is the Minority Career Retreat, which teaches students resume writing and interviewing skills.

CCDC also offers confidential assistance with any social or personal problems students may encounter. The staff is composed of five psychologists, two career counselors and five graduate assistants.

Brown praises poll officials

by Wynne Everett
staff reporter

The Wood County Board of Elections was paid the highest of compliments Thursday.

While in town to honor poll workers, Secretary of State Sherrod Brown congratulated the office, saying no election board in the state runs better.

As he presented certificates of appreciation to honor the 58 county polling officials who have served 25 years or more, he described them as greatly unappreciated for their involvement in the electoral system that most Americans take for granted.

"In China this summer, we saw people who were willing to die for democracy," Brown said. "In the USSR and Poland right now, we are seeing change, with many of the old Kremlin leaders being voted out and the Polish government accepting for the first time a non-communist prime minister."

This level of participation, he said, can be attributed to poll officials like the ones in Wood County.

"Some people like to criticize the government and say it should be run more like a business — but I'd like to point out that no business could mobilize the 52,000 volunteers for democracy who work in Ohio on election day the way the government can," Brown said. "This runs better than any business."

After his speech, Brown commented on the upcoming governor's race which he opted not to enter because he believes his two daughters were too young for his family to have to endure a campaign.

"I'd be interested in running in, say, four or eight years, but not this year. There are a lot of people running, and there'll be a lot of money spent," he said. "It's a shame, but each of the two primary winners will probably spend around $10 million."

However, Brown said if Thomas Ferguson were to enter the campaign for governor, that he would be interested in running for the state auditor's office which Ferguson currently occupies.

Contrasting these countries to the United States, Brown said he would like to see more boards of election work with the "enthusiasm, hospitality, and bi-partisanship" of the Wood County board to increase voter participation in elections.

"We're seeing the seeds of democracy sprout more so now, than any other time in the 20th century," Brown said. "Unfortunately, we do not see that in our own country."

Although only 40 percent of the eligible population voted in the general election last November, Brown said Ohio's voter turnout was the best of any major state in the country.

Renting a movie no longer means leaving the comfort of your own home with the opening of a new video store in Bowling Green.

Late Nite Video, 118 S. Enterprise St., will deliver and pick up movies, at various locations around campus and in residential areas for a charge.

Dale Bensman, one of three owners of Late Nite, said the store aims to keep mostly current releases and cult videos in stock.

He said their goal is to eliminate "dead weight" movies which are rarely checked out from the selection.

Bensman said the idea for a business like Late Nite Video was generated by three college seniors from Miami University.

"The three of us were joking around one night about how nice it would be if we didn't have to pick up our movies — if we could just have them delivered to us," Bensman said.

One of the students tested the video delivery idea in a class project which required him to do market research about an imaginary business. He surveyed a sample of students at Miami University and realized that there was a demand for a video store which would deliver to the students.

"Using the financial knowledge we had learned at Miami, we opened our first store in Oxford last January," Bensman said.

Since then, they have opened a store in Madison, Wis., in addition to their latest store in Bowling Green, which is operated by Bensman.

For students who do not have access to a video cassette recorder, Late Nite will deliver a VCR with the movie for a fee. They also deliver Nintendo Action Sets along with Nintendo game cartridges.

Late Nite delivers from 4:30 p.m. until midnight Monday through Thursday, 4:30 p.m. to 1 a.m. Friday, 2 p.m. to 1 a.m. Saturday and 2 p.m. to midnight on Sunday.

Those opting to pick up their own videos and equipment can do so for a lesser charge.

Logic illustrated with new video

by Lori Miller
staff writer

Philosophy professors Donald Scherer and James Stuart believe their new teaching method is quite "logical."

Two days a week the students in Philosophy 103 — Introduction to Logic — meet in groups of 36 and watch a videotape that includes explanatory skits and definitions for the class.

"We knew that passive learning (was not) very effective and that students learn in different ways," said Scherer. "This method of teaching allows students to learn the way they learn best."

All the emphasized words are in yellow and when definitions are shown, they are done so on a background with the word "definition" printed on it, he explained.

plained.

"The instructor can say the definition and put it on the board but he doesn't say it was a definition seven times," he said. "There are lots of cues (on the television) that show them things without coming out and saying it."

Stuart, who narrates for the tape, said due to their experience in teaching philosophy, the professors understand the pitfalls of this course.

"The skits are devised to illustrate logical points and concepts which we could not do in a lecture class," he said.

In addition to the videotape, Scherer said students are given a set of "almost complete notes ... which become an outline of the course. Students have said it is an excellent study guide."

'Spoyld' band rocks University

by Melissa Puccetti
reporter

The University Activities Organization "Spoyld" the crowd on Thursday in front of the Student Services building.

The Cleveland rock band Spoyld played a welcome back concert "For a new experience to get everyone involved in school," UAO performing arts director Scott Henricks said.

Spoyld has opened for the bands Poison and Great White, and are billed as Cleveland's number one rock band.

Gale Swanka, UAO program director, said "We have so many top 40 bands that it's good to have a diversity."

Gary Davis, junior RTVF major from Cleveland, said, "It's nice seeing a band from home at Bowling Green, and I'm glad that UAO is bringing a variety of musical talent to campus."

Davis, a WBGU Metalstorm DJ said, "I get a lot of requests on the air from students for more hard rock music."

"I think it's a great idea to have a hard rock band on campus," sophomore Craig Brown said. "The music around here is mostly progressive and there's a rising popularity for heavy metal."

Mitch Karczewski, the manager for Spoyld, said that the group really enjoys playing on campus to the college crowd. The band played at the University two years ago during the "Days of Rock."

"It's nice to be back in B.G.," said Karczewski. When asked how they got their name, the band said, "We opened the refrigerator, took a drink of milk and said 'Whoa! this stuff is gone!'"

Voinovich launches plan

by Thomas J. Sheeran
Associated Press Writer

CLEVELAND — Mayor George Voinovich, a candidate for governor, who was criticized when police recruited a drug dealer as an informant, Thursday launched a "war on drugs" aimed at 8,500 municipal employees.

Several dozen mostly white collar City Hall employees attended a two-and-a-half-hour drug education class, the kickoff to a program which Voinovich hopes to expand to include employee drug testing.

Voinovich's staff has been negotiating with unions representing employees to clear the way for testing of any worker suspected of drug use.

Voinovich, who called the effort "a serious war" against illegal drug use when outlining the program earlier this week, has announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for governor in 1990. In July, Voinovich suspended for 30 days Police Chief Howard E. Rudolph, who was head of the narcotics unit in 1985 when detectives recruited Arthur L. Feckner, a drug dealer, as an informant during an undercover sting operation. The police handling of the case and subsequent investigations have been an issue in the mayoral campaign in Cleveland.

Feckner has said police knew he was dealing drugs, but allowed him to continue in the hope of catching his supplier. Police have said they believed the money Feckner obtained came from collections of old debts.

Jerry Masek, the mayor's chief spokesman, said the timing of the "war on drugs" and employee education program were unrelated to the political fallout of the Feckner case. Masek noted that City Hall's employee assistance program first began in 1985 to help workers with alcohol-related programs and later was expanded to include illegal drugs.

"We would encourage employers in the public and private sectors to follow with similar employee assistance programs," Masek said.

Last year the city's non-uniformed employee assistance program helped 400 people, 70 percent of whom had chemical dependencies. Of those 5 percent about 182 were cocaine users, according to Claudette Tidmore Hughes, project director for the city's employee assistance program.

She predicted that any large employer would have about a 10 percent incidence of drug abuse and said it contributed to accidents, absenteeism and tardiness.

During the first employee education session, few people volunteered personal knowledge of illegal drugs. No one, for instance, mentioned that marijuana is also popularly known as "pot" when asked by the instructor.

Ms. Tidmore Hughes said such hesitance reflected both the sensitive nature of the subject and the recent public interest in the Feckner case and other drug-related stories in Cleveland.

"There's sort of a spotlight on it from the mayor's office," she said. "They (employees) are afraid of repercussions."

ments, on which legislators will act before July 1, 1990.

Coulter indicated in an interview that regents would likely try to make a case for increased construction funding, since some money borrowed by bond sales in the 1960s and 1970s will be paid back in the mid-1990s.

"Some of that original stuff now is getting pretty close to being paid off, and when that happens you begin to see debt service leveling off as a share of the General Revenue Fund, even as you continue to have new appropriation acts. And the debt service as a share of general revenue even begins to point downward after a few years of being relatively stable," he said.

"We're getting at that point, and we will be talking to the governor and others that maybe this is about the time when you could begin to spend somewhat more without that share continuing to rise. This is a very key time in that respect," Coulter said.

Coulter will meet with the presidents of all state-assisted colleges during the next three months to discuss cuts proposed by the regents in the capital budgets of each institution.

"It's quite an experience because everybody wants more than the state can possibly finance. That's always the case," he said.

"I can't give you numbers ... because this is too uncertain. I'm going into all kinds of hearings where presidents are going to be beating me on the head to do more, and it isn't until December that we can finally send a recommendation," he said.

Construction spending requests submitted by all four-year universities and two-year colleges for the period from July 1990 to July 1992 amounted to $1.02 billion.

Among the four-year campuses, Ohio State University sought the most money, with requests reaching $155.2 million.

Food

Schimpf said Food Operations realizes these transactions take place and does not approve of them, but the activity does not handicap the operation.

"At the rate they're selling (the coupon books), they're losing a good deal," she said.

The plan, estimated to cost $250,000, will be proposed within a month, Schimpf said.

Should the proposal be approved by Robert Martin, (Vice President of Operations) the Capital Budget Planning Committee and then the Board of Trustees it would be implemented next summer, Schimpf said.

Eventually, the system would not only include Food Operations, but could also be used to purchase items campus-wide.

The results of this course have proved to be very favorable, the professors said. In every case the scores improve and the overall grade average also improves.

"Test results are over 6 percent higher than they were," Scherer said. "We feel students are learning more from this approach compared to a large lecture approach."

"Student evaluations ... are also perhaps a little better with the video format than with the large lecture one," he added.

BG faces mirror image

by Mike Drabenstott
sports reporter

Given the similarities, the soccer team's 1989 season opener Saturday against Central Michigan in Mt. Pleasant, Mich. could closely resemble an intrasquad scrimmage.

Both teams are remarkably alike, having witnessed a multitude of defensive changes since last season, while retaining scoring punch on the offensive end of the field.

"We are an amazing clone of Bowling Green, they've had as much turnover as we've had," CMU head coach Jim Hornak said. "We have the same problem on paper — an underdeveloped defense."

Hornak said four of his five defensemen will be first-year players. Likewise, BG will begin the season with freshmen manning the four starting back spots in front of senior goalkeeper Mickey Loescher.

Falcon head coach Gary Palmisano said his young defense has been progressing well.

"They've made strides quickly," he said. "But team defense is something you can never spend enough time on. It's an ongoing process throughout the year."

Yet, what BG lost in experience they may have gained in frame of mind, the BG mentor added.

"This year a majority of the players have a very strong character and will," Palmisano said. "Their enthusiasm and attitude, from our standpoint, is at an all-time high."

"We have a group who will find a way to get things done," he continued. "It's not always pretty, it's not always by the book, but it's an attitude that will result in a number of wins."

Offensively, the Falcons will look to junior Kyle Royer and sophomore Chris Iantoni to move the offense up the field.

"From the standpoint of ability and talent, we're really pleased," Palmisano said. "We're able to attack in a variety of different ways."

CMU returns four of five forwards, including last season's leading scorer Joe Dimaria, who Hornak said "has the potential to dominate any game."

With the attack and defense of each team relatively equal, the difference in the game might be hidden in the midfield, where players fight for possession of the ball and begin to move it toward the opposition's goal.

Perhaps the only discrepancy between the two teams is history — the Falcons hold an impressive 9-0 series record against the Chippewas. Last year's 3-2 overtime victory was the third straight one-goal win over CMU, which Hornak said indicates that his squad could be ready for an upset.

"BG is considered the class team of the conference. The last several years we have played them very close," he said.

Mistakes fill scrimmage

by Andy Woodard
sports reporter

Moe Ankney wasn't a happy man Thursday — and with good reason.

Bowling Green held its second and final intrasquad scrimmage at Doyt Perry Field and didn't perform well. Offensive and defensive players alike made mistakes after mistakes.

The Falcons weren't perfect in their first scrimmage a week ago, either. But Ankney, the fourth year head coach, wasn't concerned — the season-opening game at East Carolina was two weeks away.

One week from today, Bowling Green will arrive in Greenville, N.C.

The opener is closer and the Falcons haven't shown improvement in a week's time.

"This was definitely sloppier than scrimmage No. 1, especially on offense. There were way too many turnovers and dumb mistakes," Ankney said. "I'm very concerned. We should be making less mistakes. But there were too many missed assignments and screw ups."

"The players lacked concentration."

The teams combined on 10 penalties for 85 yards. The offense committed at least eight turnovers, five on interceptions. No official statistic was available on fumbles, but three were noted.

In the race for the No. 2 quarterback job, freshman Erik White moved ahead of sophomore Pat Gucciardo.

White was six-for-eight for 60 yards and one interception, while Gucciardo completed only two-of-seven passes for 14 yards and two interceptions.

But as was the case in the first scrimmage, Ankney didn't like their performances.

"Neither of these guys have stepped to the front," Ankney said.

Defensively, missed tackles ended up in long gains, one for 67 yards by tailback Deon Allen.

The scrimmage was not a complete disaster, though.

Spikers ready for opener

Falcons set to battle at George Washington Tourney

by Mike Moliney
sports reporter

After concluding its 1988 campaign with eight-straight victories, the Bowling Green volleyball team will look to continue its winning ways in a season opening tournament at George Washington University.

Van De Walle

Seventh-year head coach Denise Van De Walle, who currently possesses an 103-78 record, will lead the Falcons into action with high expectations and hopes of a successful season.

"I'm hoping to see us be very competitive, while really focusing on a couple aspects of our game," Van De Walle said. "I would like to see us serve tough and try to take our opponents out of their offenses with good defense."

The Falcons will open the tournament today at 5 p.m. against Northern Iowa. Other teams in the Falcons' pool include Duke and host George Washington. Rounding out the field of eight will be Florida State, Georgetown, Northern Arizona and nationally ranked Minnesota.

With a field of this caliber, Van De Walle is looking forward to facing the early season test.

"Anytime you play early in the season, it's beneficial," she said.

In a successful scrimmage against Ohio State Wednesday at Anderson Arena, the spikers look to be on their way to a victorious weekend.

"Taking OSU five out of six games in Wednesday's scrimmage will be a morale booster for the team at this point," Van De Walle said. "The scrimmage really set the stage for leaving for our trip."

Senior leadership will be a significant factor throughout the season for the Falcons, especially this weekend.

"I think they (seniors) will be very key people for us," Van De Walle said. "Their leadership and poise out on the court is going to be relied upon greatly."

Senior setter Linda Popovich, heads the Falcon attack this season, earning all-conference honors in each of the last two seasons. Popovich needs only 271 assists to take over the Mid-American Conference all-time lead.

Joining Popovich as starters will be fellow seniors Sheri Fella and Jennifer Russell, both of whom will provide much needed support with such a young team behind them. Another contributor to this year's squad will be senior Karin Turain, who has been a versatile player for the Falcons.

Open volleyball tryouts will be held Sept. 4 (Labor Day) at 4 p.m. at Anderson Arena. All who are interested should contact Van De Walle to pick up insurance physical forms, both of which need to be completed prior to tryouts. Call her at 372-2401 for any questions.

Reds search for new manager

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati Reds general manager Murray Cook says he wants the team's next manager — the successor to Pete Rose — to be aggressive, a good communicator and affable with reporters covering the team.

The job opened up last week when baseball Commissioner A. Bartlett Giamatti banned Rose from baseball for life. The Reds promoted coach Tommy Helms to serve as interim manager for the rest of this season.

Cook says Helms will be considered for the manager's job. But, Cook makes clear that the potential field of candidates is wide open and could include anyone who has managed a major-league team, including former Houston manager Hal Lanier and ex-San Diego boss Larry Bowa.

"All of these people will be considered to some degree," said Cook, who declined to be more specific.

He said it will not be a top priority for the Reds to either hire or ignore minority candidates. "I consider them like any other candidates, as far as whether they have the qualifications that I think are necessary for the job," he said.

Cook has looked for managers before. As general manager of the New York Yankees in 1983, he helped oversee selection of Yogi Berra as manager for the 1984 season. By the end of that season, Cook was general manager in Montreal, where he hired Buck Rodgers.

"My feeling about a manager is that he needs to be communicative," Cook said. "He has to be a good communicator ... He doesn't have to be young, but a young-thinking person. He has to be gregarious with the media. The media is a very important function for a manager."

"He doesn't have to have experience, but experience is an important criterion. Of course, he has to be someone who can get along with the players. He also has to be an organizational guide, setting some direction for instruction and philosophy in the organization. Someone who thinks the same way I do as far as the game of baseball is concerned, which means a conservative, player-development orientation for the organization."

Mack receives NFL suspension

NEW YORK (AP) — Running back Kevin Mack of the Cleveland Browns was suspended for four games by the National Football League Thursday for violating the league's drug policy.

Mack pleaded guilty on Wednesday to a criminal charge of cocaine use as part of a plea bargain which included the dismissal of three charges stemming from his arrest in June at a location known for drug sales.

The prosecution said during the court proceeding that a police investigation showed Mack had been using cocaine.

This was the first time he was held in violation of the league's substance abuse policy, so Mack would have escaped a suspension had he not been guilty of the criminal charge.

Mack, who is 6-foot and 230 pounds, has rushed for 2,989 yards in four years with the Browns.

Last season, he rushed for 485 yards on 123 carries and missed all or part of 10 games with a variety of injuries. He ran for 1,104 yards on 222 carries in his rookie season in 1985.

Mack is the 16th player to be suspended this week for violating the league substance abuse policy.

Thirteen players were suspended for having testing positive for steroids this summer while cornerback Leroy Irvin of the Los Angeles Rams and tight end Orson Mobley as second-time offenders of the substance abuse policy.

Harriers set to face Toledo

by Charles Toll
sports reporter

The Bowling Green men's cross country team will be looking to start off the season with a strong victory in the five mile race, while the women's squad will be battling injuries in the 5,000 meter race when they both travel to the University of Toledo on Saturday.

The men's team, which finished a disappointing sixth in the Mid-American Conference a year ago, will be running with a new and enthusiastic spirit, according to head coach Sid Sink.

"Last year we really didn't have a good team," Sink said. "I see a real big difference in the running and the team attitude."

"They all know what it takes to be a good runner and I know they have what it takes to make a good season."

Leading the way for the men harriers will be senior and three-year letter winner Mike McKenna. McKenna was the number one runner last year and was the top BG finisher in the MAC Conference meet.

Also expected to be running in the front of the pack will be juniors John Wodarski, Dan Fulmer and Brian Donnelly, who was the top distance runner on the track team last spring.

The men will be running against a Toledo team that finished last in MAC last season, and because classes there do not begin until September 25, they did not start organized practices until last Monday.

Although they'll only have five days of team practice under their feet, do not expect to see a lot of out-of-gas Rockets landing short of the finish line.

UT men's coach Gene Jones said his returnees trained hard on their own during the summer — averaging 70 miles a week — while their incoming freshman were not far behind, running around 40 miles a week.

Jones said the Toledo men will be led by BG transfer Bob Masters, and juniors Ed Steinhauer and Derrick Barnd.

"I know we should do well with our first three guys," Jones said of his 16 man squad. "The key will be if we can get two more guys to come to the forefront."

Unlike the men, who are strong in numbers with 31, the women only have 16 runners and will be without their top four performers. Included in this group is junior Tracey Gaerke, who earned all-conference honors last fall, and Laura Schultes, a 1,500 meter MAC winner last spring. Both are nursing foot injuries.

Adding to their troubles, Sink said they are not all in top condition, and he does not expect them to be for a few weeks.

But do not expect Sink to let the women throw in their sneakers quite yet. He did not coach four straight MAC championships teams ('80-'83) because he gave up hope before the race was even run.

Enter Jill Strawser and Cheri Triner. Both are freshman that ready to blast past the Rockets.

Sink said that with the team injuries and their small numbers, these two could come to the Falcons' aid.

"We are lucky to have two freshmen in our top five," he said. "If they could stay there all season it would really make a big difference."

With all the troubles facing the Falcon women and Sink, they will not get any sympathy from Toledo women coach Jill Lancaster.

Lancaster said the Rockets, who like the men's team, finished in the cellar of the MAC, and only have eight team members with one senior in Jackie Jaeric.

But like the Falcons, Lancaster is optimistic, noting that all her returnees are coming off personal records from the spring track season.

"I'm really excited about this group and the possibilities of the season," she said. "Working with the girls and seeing them improve is what it's all about."

The Falcons' next meet will be Sept. 9 when they travel to Marshall University to participate in a tri-meet.

Scrimmage

Smith continued to sparkle, making dazzling runs on many of his 18 carries. The Toledo native gained 99 yards and scored touchdowns from seven and four yards out.

Smith, a true freshman, is still listed as the top reserve to senior Charles Edgerton, who saw limited action due to an ankle sprain. Edgerton carried the ball four times for 25 yards and a touchdown.

Ankney said the Smith-Edgerton combination is working fine.

"The first team offensive line opened a lot of holes. Chucky ran good while he was in there and LeRoy had a good scrimmage," he said.

Quarterback Rich Dackin completed seven-of-20 passes for 158 yards, including touchdowns passes of 48 and 54 yards to Ron Heard.

Dackin, who threw two interceptions, also had five passes dropped — one to Heard in the endzone.

Inside linebacker Larry Lambright made two interceptions, while Artie Mangham, Todd Currence and Terry Wilson had one each.

Kickers Fuzzy Zeller and Todd Powell fared well, making field goals of 38 and 32 yards, respectively.

Tailback Andre Smith rounded out the scoring with a three-yard touchdown run.

Ankney offered no reason why the Falcons didn't play as well as they did Aug. 26.

But he did say the players are tired of practicing against each other.

"They're itching to play that first game," he said.

Ankney didn't appear as eager.

Linksters travel to invite

If the qualifying round is any indication of what to expect from the BG women's golf team this weekend, there should be a strong showing.

The linksters will travel to South Bend, IN on Saturday and Sunday for the Lady Irish Invitational. Head coach Greg Nye is optimistic for the first tournament of the 1989 campaign.

"The qualifying round was very exciting," he said. "The overall depth of the team is much improved."

Junior Heidi Wright and sophomores Ann Alexander and Kim Prasse shot impressively throughout the qualifying round. "If the team scores as well as they did in the qualifying round we should be in the middle to upper standings in the field."

Nye said.

The team takes a week off and then travels to Normal, IL. for the Illinois State Invitational on Sept. 16-17.

What is the least amount of money you received in a book buy-back?

Friday/Greg Horvath

Michael Drosos, senior Sports Management major from Ft. Sill, Oklahoma: "The most I paid for a book was $46.50 and that was for a biology book. The decision to keep the book came when I went to return it and I found out I'd only get $28.50 for returning it."

Marci Stork, sophomore English major from Defiance, paid $25.00 for a Stats book and only received $18.00 when she returned it. "I was lucky because it was the last one they took back at SBX and if I'd waited ten more minutes to return it they wouldn't have taken it back at all."

Cartho Bennett, junior Industrial Education major from Bowling Green: "The most I paid was $73.00 and when I found out that I'd only get $17.00 back I said forget that and kept it."

Chrissy Schroedel, sophomore RTVF major from Cleveland: "The most expensive book I bought was $40 for an environmental studies book and I got back about $17 for it. I hate how they always have a new volume with only a couple of chapters different."

Local art to be featured

by Emily S. Vosburg

As part of the 1989 Toledofest, to be held Labor Day weekend, an Artist's Colony will showcase the works of over 100 artists. The displays will be located on the east side of the Maumee River in International Park.

According to Festival Coordinator Terry Bralas, the artwork, to be exhibited and sold, will vary widely in media from "jewelry, to graphics, oil and acrylics, sculpture, glass, and photography," among others.

"The artists are predominantly from the Toledo area," Bralas said. Additionally, there will be artists from cities in twelve other states including Lansing, Mi., South Bend, In., and Buffalo, N.Y.

"There will be an on site artist, Ed Dolinger from Floyd, Va.," with a "hands-on" work, Bralas said.

Penny McMorris, Visual Arts Coordinator for the festival, said Dolinger's work is unique, combining artistic skill with a love of working with others.

"He's basically a sculptor although he works in paint, paper, and canvas, (yet) he's a performer. . . he encourages people to get their hands dirty," McMorris said.

The sculpture, to be titled "Art Parts," will be created and designed on site at the festival.

"From 12-4 p.m. people will be invited to paint, and from 4-6 p.m., (Dolinger) will let the paint dry, rework it, and cut it apart, changing the shape and form.

"The piece will continue to evolve until Monday at 6 p.m." McMorris said.

"He's very friendly and people should have a good time talking to him. It will be a chance for all of us to take part in his art," McMorris said.

A few Friday changes...

by Christian Thompson and Chris Dawson

Hello.

There will be several new creative features in Friday Magazine this semester. Change is something in this world that is generally regarded as inevitable. So Friday is going to change, to make it more of a student magazine; it will be more informal, and reflect upon average student.

Some of our old features will remain, such as the creative expressions section, Inside All of Us, which will still be an outlet for student poets. However, short stories and fiction excerpts (from longer, student written pieces of literature) will have their own section, entitled the Writer's Block.

All students are invited to submit their work at 214 West Hall to be reviewed by a creative writing staff whose names will be announced next week. Friday Magazine reserves the right to edit all materials submitted for the purpose of publishing. Our movie and music reviews will still be the same, but we hope to feature more local musical acts, especially from the College of Musical Arts. We are also hoping to expand the movie reviews with reviews of what's out on videotape, to reflect the widespread popularity of VCR's with BG students.

We hope you enjoy the magazine and have a great semester!

Textbook prices bring student woes

by Laura Hardy

Buying textbooks is perhaps one of the least enjoyable and most financially painful activities associated with the beginning of each semester. At one time or another, you have undoubtedly found yourself grumbling about textbook prices, especially after leaving the bookstore with a three-digit bill and only a handful of books.

Don't be quick to blame the bookstores for how much you pay, however. Textbook prices are determined not by the stores themselves, but by the book publishers' list prices, according to Gwen Ohlinger, assistant director of the University book store.

She said the number of books ordered is determined by requisition orders submitted by University professors.

"The bookstore does not have a choice," Ohlinger said, referring to the fact that books must be ordered from the publishers specified by the professors.

Because used books cost less than new editions, students tend to buy used copies first, which means those editions may not be available to students who wait to purchase their books several days or a week into the semester, said Steve Donnelly, manager of the Student Book Exchange.

While the University bookstore carries both new and used textbooks, SBX, at 530 E. Wooster St. in Bowling Green, stocks mostly used editions, Donnelly said. He said book prices are determined by their market value and subject matter. "It's more difficult to find someone to write textbooks for upper level graduate courses and more specialized courses than for introductory-level classes," he said.

In addition to buying books, many students find selling their books back at the end of the semester just as disheartening. Holly Bergman, a junior international business major, said she believes book prices are not unreasonable, but said she does not think students receive sufficient refunds when they sell their books back at the end of the semester.

"It's frustrating to spend $200 on books and only receive $50 or $60 back," she said.

While financially-conscious students will continue to be concerned about the amount of money they spend on books each semester, Ohlinger believes students should keep in mind the importance of textbooks in relation to their overall education.

"A textbook is like a tool of a student's education," she said. "If you buy a $50 book, you should get $50 worth of use out of it."

Rundgren returns

(AP) — Veteran rock 'n' roller Todd Rundgren says his concert tour isn't a nostalgia act, although some of his older work is getting new attention.

"We try to cover a lot of the songs off the new record, but we also sprinkle the show liberally with so-called oldies," said the 41-year-old rocker known for such songs as "We Gotta Get You a Woman" and "I Saw the Light."

Rundgren's new album, "Nearly Human," sounds similar to his 1972 "Something-Anything," he told The Tennessean in an interview published Sunday.

One song from the older album, "It Wouldn't Have Made Any Difference," emerged last year recorded by pop star Johnny Mathis. The song also was described as a favorite by W. Axl Rose of the rock group Guns N' Roses.

Rundgren said he couldn't explain why the old tune was getting such attention.

"The only dark cloud is that they are both interested in an album that's approaching 20 years old," said Rundgren, who has released about 20 albums and produced many more for acts that include Cheap Trick and the Psychedelic Furs.

Diverse performers set for Cityfest

by Frank Esposito

The husband/wife team of Pat McDonald and Barbara K., known to the rock world as Timbuk 3, quaked with fear as Art School, Toledo's own monsters of rock, stormed the stage for their 29th encore. Timbuk 3's 8 p.m. set was to start in five minutes, but upon hearing a shirtless, sweating Perry Finch (Art School's bassist and lead crooner) scream, "ROCK AND ROLL, I CAN'T HEAR YOU!!!!", they resigned themselves to their fate and roamed off to catch Jose Martinez' scorchin' mariachi set.

Welcome to the 1989 Toledo Cityfest.

Okay, so the above scene hasn't transpired...yet. But Art School and Timbuk 3 are among the many local and national acts that will provide the grooves for this annual event. The action begins today on three separate stages: Budweiser, International Park, and Festival Park.

Today's big act is the Romantics, best known for their smash hits "Talking In Your Sleep" (1984 - it battled Tommy Tutone's "867-5309" for the number one spot on the pop charts - those were the days) and "What I Like About You" (1979). They've been floundering of late, but have added ex-Ramones' drummer Clem Burke who should add some glue-sniffin' grunge to their sound. Other acts include Tim Finn (formerly of New Zealand's Split Enz who is hoping to share some of the success that his brother Neil has enjoyed with Crowded House), Ganerra Panterra, and Indio.

Quite simply, Saturday is going to be a musical explosion. The International Park Stage will feature pianists Art Edgeron and Mark Kieswetter, folk singer Paul Knopp, and rock combo Maiden America. Mariachi king Jose Martinez will share the Festival Park Stage with R&B artists the Satin Band and a trio of jazz outfits (Swing Shift, Five Guys Named Moe, and Johnny O'Neill & the Murphys with Jerry Sawicki). A quartet of local rock bands will precede Timbuk 3 on the Budweiser Stage. As said above, the retro-rashmeisters of Art School kick things off, followed by Braille Radio, the Great Bar-B-Q Gods, and Schwah (with former Sheepish Grin groover Troy Raszka on bass guitar). That should warm things up for Timbuk 3.

This Austin, Texas-based duo have a new album Edge of Allegiance which will undoubtedly follow in the tracks of 1986's Greetings From Timbuk 3 (which earned them a Grammy nomination for Best New Group and spawned the Top Twenty single, "The Future's So Bright (I Gotta Wear Shades)," undoubtedly, one of the most misunderstood singles in history) and 1988's Eden Alley (which stiffed on the charts despite such standout tracks as "Sample the Dog"). Their fusion of country melodies, soaring harmonies, dry, piercing wit, and futuristic rhythm tracks should put a few cracks in the Glass City.

Sunday is promising as well, with folk acts Jenny Reynolds, The Ray Band, and Pat Lewandowski on the International Park Stage. The Festival Park Stage will feature Don & Joni Coats (folk), Young Rep (musical theater), the Bonkers (Classic Rock), and the X-Citerz (rock). One of Sunday's feature attractions is Laurel Masse, a rising jazz singer who was a founding member of the Manhattan Transfer. Her latest album Easy Living hit #15 on the jazz charts. The other big drawing card is Leon Redbone, an entertainer who performs traditional American music such as blues, jazz, dixieland, and vaudeville numbers in his own bizarre way. Redbone rose to prominence with his hit 1976 album On The Track and memorable appearances on "Saturday Night Live" during the show's first two seasons (1976 and 1977). Both Masse and Redbone will perform on the Budweiser Stage.

This rainbow of sound will reach its pot o' gold on Monday with the Griswolds (blues), Georgia Peach (rock), and the Nutones (rock) on the Budweiser Stage while jazz pianist Dave Feltner and folk acts Mike McCarty and Baker, Mann, & Oswanski grace the International Park Stage. The Festival Park Stage will be hosting a good ol' hoedown with the Cakewalkin' Jass Band (dixieland), the Jon Krosnick Quartet (jazz), Thrust (jazz), Nashville North (country), and Clear Fork (bluegrass). The Toledo Symphony Orchestra will take things out with a bang with a closing performance complete with fireworks on the Budweiser Stage.

There's gotta be somethin' you're gonna like at this chock-full four-day event. Bring your boylove or girllove and enjoy. And c'mon, where else are ya gonna find a band with a 6' 5" guitarist that plays such tunes as "Cincinnati Bitch" and "I'm In Love With Your Mother"? Get real. Unless ya check out Art School this weekend, it ain't gonna happen.

'Speedy delivery man' on Toledofest stage

by Chuck Travis

"It's going to be a wonderful day in the neighborhood" for fans of the long running show, Mr. Rodgers' Neighborhood, which airs on the Public Broadcasting Service.

"Mr. McFeeley, the friendly 'speedy delivery man,' will be appearing at Toledofest, to put on his special brand of entertainment Sept. 2, 3, and 4," said Jamie Pierman, head of public relations for WGTE-TV 30.

"The show's (Mr. Rodgers' Neighborhood) aim is to amuse and educate children, while at the same time generating a sense of community and belongingness," she said. "Mr. Newell (Mr. McFeeley), although more of a background figure in the cast, makes most of the public appearances for the show."

A University student who watched the educational program remembers it with a "whimsical fondness."

"I always felt good coming home from school and watching the show when Mr. Rodgers came in to the house and changed into his tennis shoes. It symbolized for me a change from the workday to the fun time," said Steve Raglow, English graduate student.

"In performance with Mr. McFeeley will be the Purple Panda, a sidekick of the expeditious courier as well as several friendly puppets who will assist him with his numerous stage shows. The stage shows themselves will be acted out on the Frogtown stage twice daily over the course of the three day Celebration of the Arts," she said.

Pierman said, after each performance Mr. McFeeley will attempt to meet personally with the thousands of youngsters who are expected to greet the kindly television personality.

"A calvacade of multi-colored balloons will be on hand for the children as well as the opportunity to receive a personally autographed photograph from the character," she said.

Times of the stage shows will be as follows: Saturday at 3 and 5 p.m.; Sunday at noon and 3 p.m.; and Monday at noon, 2 and 4 p.m.

King sculpture unveiling

by Emily S. Vosburg

The final dedication ceremony for the Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. Memorial Bridge will be held Saturday, Sept. 2 at 11:30 a.m. as part of ToledoFest activities. A sculpture of the civil rights leader, created by two local artists, will be the focus of the hour.

"(The sculpture) is a collaborated work by Wil Clay and Constanca Gafeney-Brown. . . (it is) six feet high and the main features are stainless steel and bronze," community specialist Maggie Smith said.

"It is a large sphere with four images of Dr. King and below that there are plaques inlaid into the body having excerpts of various speeches by Dr. King," Smith said. "Parts of the sculpture will also be printed in braille, allowing everyone to 'see' it."

"Reverend Jim Holly from Detroit, Mi., is the guest speaker...there will also be other notables on stage, including Mayor Donna Owens who will do the ribbon cutting immediately following the speech."

The ceremony will be held on the bridge, however, the Portside Center Stage has been reserved as a rain site.

Racing and food at Fest

by Jennifer L. Stagg

It is the fifth year for the Formula One Grand Prix to return to ToledoFest. Locally presented by Budweiser, Formula One Grand Prix has made Toledo an annual stop on the circuit for the U.S. Formula One Racing Association, Inc. "Toledo is a crucial stop on the tour this year because the series point standings are so close," said Bob DeGrenier, president of USFORA. "With at least $50,000 riding on the season's final standings, I expect the drivers to pull out all the stops to take the cup in Toledo and overtake points leader Buck Thornton."

According to DeGrenier, Thornton has had victories in Cincinnati and Chicago and a third place finish in Chattanooga. He has an 82 point lead over the runner-up, Andy Bullen, while Cess van der Velden, Holland's "Flying Dutchman," has also won two races. The competitive nature of the race has drawn thousands of spectators.

"The competition this year has been extraordinary. We've had some of our closest and fastest races ever, this year," said DeGrenier, "and the crowds have loved it."

Aside from the spectacular competition, the crowds are drawn to the racing speeds reached by the drivers. The tunnel boats speed up to 140 mph and can make hairpin turns up to 90 mph. There are 14 entries from several parts of the country including some international drivers, DeGrenier said. There are time trials at 12:30 p.m. and a 20 lap race at 3 p.m. on Saturday. The actual Formula One Grand Prix is fifty laps around a 1.2 mile course on the Maumee River and will begin at 2 p.m. on Sunday.

There is prime viewing of the ToledoFest Formula One Grand Prix in the International Park beer garden, where festival goers can also find ToledoFest's newest addition to the festivities, "ToledoFest."

Area restaurants will serve complete sit-down meals as well as beer and wine in the Promenade Park beer garden. The participating restaurants have been chosen to guarantee a wide selection of foods. Local restaurants included in "ToledoFest" are China Gate, Charley's Roadhouse, Cedars, Nick & Jimmy's, and Subway Sub Shops.

In addition to the sit-down meals, concession stands will be stationed throughout Promenade and International Park.

'Music Man' plays encore performances

The Bowling Green Summer Musical Theatre will present three final performances of its 10th anniversary year production of Meredith Willson's "The Music Man," Sept. 7-9.

Performances will be at 8 p.m. in Kobacker Hall of the Moore Musical Arts Center. The production is co-sponsored by the College of Musical Arts and the theatre department.

Reserve seat tickets are $3, $5 and $7 for students and senior citizens and $5, $7 and $9 for others.

Tickets for all performances are on sale now at the Moore Musical Arts Center box office, which is open from noon to 6 p.m. weekdays.

In the 1957 Broadway smash musical, Meredith Willson tells a story of the innocence of mid-America in the early 1900s. Harold Hill, a con artist, convinces the citizens of River City, Iowa, that he is able to teach their children to play musical instruments. Before he can flee and leave the townspeople with a shipment of instruments, he falls in love with Marian, the local librarian.

The show includes such well-recognized pieces as "Seventy-Six Trombones" and "Gary, Indiana" which highlight the musical. Somewhat autobiographical, "The Music Man" was inspired by Willson's recollections of his boyhood hometown of Mason City, Iowa.

The title role will be portrayed by Allen Kepke, director of the theatre department; graduate student Valery Stasky plays Marian. Other featured performers include English professor Tom Kinney as Mayor Shinn and Barbara Lockard-Zimmerman as the mayor's wife.

Bowling Green's production of the musical is directed by F. Scott Regan, a professor of theatre. James Brown, director of choral music at Bowling Green High School, is the choreographer.

Green Sheet is published by the Bowling Green State University Office of Public Relations for students, faculty and staff.

The next issue of Green Sheet will be published Sept. 15. It will cover events occurring Sept. 18 through Oct. 1. The deadline to submit information for that issue is noon Wednesday, Sept. 13.

All events must be submitted in writing to the Green Sheet editor, 806 Administration Building. There is no charge to have an item listed.

Many new students are curious about the different student organizations which exist on campus, but are perhaps confused, overwhelmed or hesitant to join a particular group because they do not know enough about an organization's purpose.

In an attempt to remedy this, the Student Organizations Leadership Development (S.O.L.D.) Organization and the Office of Student Activities and Orientation will be holding the annual Student Organizations Fair on Thursday (Sept. 7) from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the Lenhart Grand Ballroom, Union.

Representatives of more than 70 student organizations will be on-hand to answer questions.

"This fair is especially good for someone new to the campus, but it is certainly not limited to freshmen. It is an opportunity to go to one place and see 70 organizations, ask questions, find information and get to know the people who are already involved," Greg DeCrane, assistant vice-president of University Student Activities, said.

The fair is designed to present a carnival-like atmosphere, and, to that end, popcorn, soft drinks, balloons and buttons will be given away.

Rec Center offers variety of programs

The Student Recreation Center is sponsoring several programs which encourage fitness and wellness in an attempt to provide students with a healthier lifestyle.

"Fitwell" is designed to assist members in developing and maintaining a personal fitness program, with the ultimate goal of establishing a life-long, personal fitness lifestyle.

The "Learn to Swim" program offers nine different class levels, from "water babies" to adults. Classes meet on Saturday mornings for 10 weeks during the semester and cost is $8 per person per session.

"Fit-for-All" Aerobics is designed as a free co-ed program which has four different levels of difficulty and is offered Monday through Thursday.

For more information on all of these programs, contact the Student Recreation Center.

COMING THIS FALL TO A CAMPUS NEAR YOU

'Deathtrap' opens theatre season

Season passes are now on sale for the University Theatre's 1989-90 season. Thirteen productions are scheduled during the season, which opens Sept. 27.

For the second year, matinee performances are being continued for many of the shows and reserved seating will be available for all performances in the Joe E. Brown and Eva Marie Saint theatres.

The Eva Marie Saint Theatre, named in honor of Academy Award-winning actress and Bowling Green alumnae Eva Marie Saint, will be the site of four productions, beginning with Ira Levin's "Deathtrap" at 8 p.m. Sept. 27-30 and at 2 p.m. Oct. 1.

Eugene O'Neill's "Ah Wilderness" will be presented at 8 p.m. Nov. 2-4 and Nov. 9-11. "The Merry Wives of Windsor" by William Shakespeare will be staged at 8 p.m. Feb. 22-24 and March 1-3.

In cooperation with the College of Musical Arts, the University Theatre will present "Quilters" by Molly Newman and Barbara Damshek as the spring musical. The show will be staged at 8 p.m. April 18-21 and at 2 p.m. on April 22.

The Joe E. Brown Theatre stage will be the site for performances of "University," with an all-freshman cast, at 8 p.m. Oct. 11-14 and at 2 p.m. Oct. 15. A readers' theatre production of "Painting Churches" will be presented at 8 p.m. Nov. 29 through Dec. 2 and at 2 p.m. Dec. 3.

The Theta Alpha Phi theatre honor society will present Larry Shue's "The Nerd" at 8 p.m. Feb. 8-10 and at 2 p.m. Feb. 11. The final Joe E. Brown Theatre production will be "The Shorts Festival '90: A Bill of One Acts" at 8 p.m. on March 7-10 and at 2 p.m. on March 11.

Productions to be staged by the University Theatre at various other locations include "Machinal" on Oct. 4-7; "Love's Labors Lost" on Oct. 25-28; "Seascape" on Feb. 14-17; and "The Boys Next Door" on April 4-7. Admission to these performances is $2 per person, and no tickets are sold in advance.

The University Theatre is offering theatre passes which can be used to pay for a single ticket at any performance in Eva Marie Saint Theatre or Joe E. Brown Theatre. To use the pass, simply show it at the theatre box office. Passes will be honored as long as tickets are available for a given performance. Patrons can call the box office to reserve tickets for all productions.

Passes, which cost $20 for students and senior citizens and $30 for others, are on sale at the University Theatre Office located in 322 South Hall. For more information or to order tickets, call 372-2222.

Russell, Evans headline Parents Show

Tickets for this year's Parent's Day performance, featuring political satirist Mark Russell, are now on sale.

Set for Nov. 5 in Anderson Arena, the show will also feature Sarah Ann Evans, who was Miss Ohio in 1987 and is currently a graduate student at the University.

Approximately 150 $10 tickets are still available, and many $8 and $6 reserved seats remain. All $13 tickets have sold out.

Tickets can be purchased at the Alumni Center. Credit card orders can be taken over the phone; the telephone number is 372-2701.

The annual show is sponsored by the Alumni Association and the Parents Club.

Series celebrates 'Dazzling Decade'

Ten years ago this fall the Moore Musical Arts Center opened its doors for the first time.

To salute the anniversary, the College of Musical Arts has announced that the 1989-90 Festival Series will be a celebration of that "dazzling decade."

The series opens Oct. 19 with "The Intimate P.D.Q. Bach." Professor Peter Schickele has been promoting the music of P.D.Q. Bach, "the imaginary, youngest and not very talented son of J.S. Bach," since 1965 to the delight of classical music fans.

American music will be in the spotlight when the St. Paul Chamber Orchestra, conducted by John Adams, performs in the series on Nov. 7. The concert will mark the opening of the University's Tenth Annual New Music and Art Festival as well as American Music Week.

The St. Paul Chamber Orchestra is one of the foremost ensembles of its kind in the country. The orchestra's Bowling Green program will feature the music of Copland, Ives and John Adams.

The Jazz Arts Group of Columbus, led by artistic director Ray Eubands, performs in the series on Feb. 6, 1990. Now in its 15th year, JAG presents the best of American jazz and popular music, from the big band era to works by well known composers of today.

The Festival Series continues March 29, 1990 with the Erick Hawkins Dance Company.

The King's Singers will provide the season finale for the Festival Series on April 27, 1990.

Tickets for the entire series are on sale and discounts are available for students. For more information, contact the Moore Musical Arts Center box office.

Community Day for students, too

When school is in session, approximately 34,000 people reside in Bowling Green, while during the summer months the town is home to only 18,000. Whether students recognize it or not, they are a large part of the community.

One way students can meet their neighbors is to attend the sixth annual Bowling Green Community Day, to be held Sunday (Sept. 17) from noon to 6 p.m. in City Park.

Sponsored by the Promote Bowling Green Committee, a division of the Chamber of Commerce, a meal is being served from 12:15 to 2:45 p.m. which includes barbecued chicken, potato salad, cole slaw, a roll and lemonade or coffee.

Tickets are $3.50 for children and $4.25 for others and may be purchased at the Union information desk or from the Chamber of Commerce. Other scheduled events include a celebrity softball game pitting WTVG Channel 13 against a city/BGSU/chamber "all-star" team, children's games, craft exhibits, musical entertainment, a petting zoo and a hot-air balloon lift off.

HPER program seeks volunteers

A special opportunity for students to work with children with physical and mental disabilities will begin Sunday (Sept. 10). This is the date of an organizational meeting for all students, both past and new volunteers, interested in working with a person in the HPER Saturday Morning Recreation Program for Handicapped Children.

To be held at 7 p.m. in 206 Eppler Complex, North, the meeting is designed to inform students about the program, the schedule and to match volunteers with participants.

The program is conducted on campus and serves approximately 65 disabled children and adults, aged four and up. It meets from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. six Saturdays each semester, with the first meeting set for Saturday (Sept. 23).

Prior to the meeting, additional information can be obtained from Dolores A. Black, associate professor in the School of HPER and director of the program, in 104 B Eppler Complex, North (372-6917).

UAO asks: Adopt a plant?

Does the windowsill look a little bare? Is something not quite right about that corner? Do you just need someone (or something) to talk to? Well, University Activities Organization has the solution.

This Wednesday through Friday (Sept. 6-8) from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the Union Oval, UAO will be holding its annual Plant Sale.

Plants featured at the sale will include spider and rubber plants and cacti. Costs range from $2 to $20, depending on the type of plant and its size.

Symphony to perform

by Donna Sharper

"The Toledo Symphony will begin its performing season at the ToledoFest by celebrating the 200th anniversary of the French Revolution and the 50th anniversary of Gershwin's Rhapsody in Blue," said Claire Wade, marketing sales manager for the Symphony.

The hour long performance will take place in Promenade Park, Monday, Sept. 4, at 8:30 p.m., according to Wade.

Ole Schmidt, principal guest conductor and interim music advisor will conduct the program which will feature guest Toledo-born pianist Anthony Pattin, Wade said.

Currently assistant professor of music and head of the keyboard department at the University of Montevallo, Ala., Pattin "grew up in Toledo and used to teach at the University of Toledo until he (Pattin) got his job in Montevallo," said Wade.

He will perform the Rhapsody in Blue, which "is an American favorite and very well known," said Wade.

According to Wade, the Symphony will perform works of French composers, Bizet, Berlioz, Saint-Saens, Le Grand, Prokofiev, and Sousa.

"We're also doing the French national anthem, Le Marseillaise," said Wade. The Symphony will close its performance with Tchaikovsky's 1812 Overture. Fireworks are scheduled for the grand finale, Wade said.

The orchestra will kick off its Classic Series September 15 and 16 at 8 p.m. in the Toledo Museum of Art peristyle, with a performance of Barber's School for Scandal Overture and Berlioz' Symphonie Fantastique under the direction of Ole Schmidt, said Judy White, Public Relations Coordinator for the Symphony.

She said Peter Serkin will be the guest pianist featured in Beethoven's Concerto for Piano No. 2 in B-flat Major.

According to White, the Symphony has begun its search for a new conductor.

"Ole Schmidt will be principal guest conductor ... and James Meena will be resident conductor," she said.

"We have three visiting conductors vying for the position of music director/conductor," said White.

When asked what type of season White predicted with five different conductors directing the orchestra, she said, "I see the 1989-90 season as a particularly dynamic, albeit eclectic season of masterful orchestral showpieces performed by virtuoso guest artists and conducted by five accomplished conductors."

'Fever' not Petty's best

by Gina Hartman

As a longtime listener of Tom Petty, with or without the Heartbreakers, it pains me to say that his latest effort "Full Moon Fever", is not his best work.

I'd always enjoyed TP's nasal, sort of monotone voice because it suited the music, like Dylan's. The drabness was a nice compliment to Mike Campbell's tinny power chord's.

But in "Full Moon Fever", a solo effort which features members of the Heartbreakers, it crosses the fine line to boring. In fact, in most cuts besides the popular "Runnin' Down a Dream", the old Gene Clark song "Feel A Whole Lot Better" and "The Apartment Song", TP himself sounds bored. Not the most effective way to sell music.

The slow songs are the worst. Unlike Dylan, Tom Petty does not possess the ability (at least on this album) to sing lyrics slowly without sounding like he's yawning between the words. "Free Fallin'", "A Face In The Crowd", "Yer

So Bad", and "Alright For Now" are examples.

"Zombie Zoo" is an exception lyrically and musically. Roy Orbison sings backups on this cut. It is a good sounding, upbeat song with disturbingly realistic lyrics about inner city teenage dropouts. "The Apartment Song" also has lyrics that anyone who's ever been in college can relate to.

The whole album comes together on "Runnin' Down a Dream." This is one of the rare times when my favorite single on any given album coincides with what the radio is playing. If you haven't heard it, it's a hard-drivin' tune with sixties style lyrics.

The award for the lamest song on the album goes to "Won't Back Down". It sounds like someone in a coma trying to talk tough. George Harrison plays acoustic guitar and sings backup vocals on this cut. "Full Moon Fever" definitely isn't a total loss, it's just not Tom Petty's best work. For that, get either "You're Gonna Get It" or "Damn The Torpedos".

Noise welcomes Dawson back to BG

by Christopher J. Dawson

Well, here we go again. That's right, it's another fun-filled, thrill o' minute semester. Boy, it just seems like yesterday that I was breaking most of the speed limit laws to get the hell out of here, and now I'm back. Oh well, only 15 weeks until this semester is over.

First off, to those of you who are of the freshman persuasion, let me say howdy. Welcome to BG. There are worse places to go to school, and you might actually end up liking this place. It has been known to happen. Secondly, you might have noticed that it is a tad windy around here. Why do you think that one of this school's nicknames is "Blowing Green"? You'll complain about the wind, especially come winter time, but everyone does.

This is a pretty friendly place. You will find that all you have to do is establish eye contact with someone for them to say hi. There will also be the usual number of people doing the Standard Guy Greeting of "Hey, how's it going?", or the old favorite "What's up?", and the usual number of people trying to figure out how to respond to those greetings ("uh, it's going well"). But hey, at least people will talk to you, or at least mumble to you.

This friendliness extends to campus life, specifically dorms. Like them or hate them, dorms are a very social place. For you freshmen, you will be meeting a wide variety of people, and your closest friends in school will be your neighbors. Living with people that you don't know isn't easy, but I'll attest that it can work out, and be pretty damn rewarding, even if your roommate snores, like mine did. There will be good times and there will be bad times, but dorm life will not be boring. It won't be quiet, either.

I have come to the conclusion that this will not be the year for sleeping in. My dorm room has been strategically placed to allow the maximum amount of noise to filter in through my windows. For example, I am within 20 feet of the garbage dumpster. The smell hasn't bothered me yet, but the fact that Mr. Garbage Man comes every morning between 8 a.m. and 8:30, does. I really enjoy that loud beeper that beeps when he backs his truck up. The maintenance people are also firm believers in working early, especially when they cut grass. Okay, big deal. If I want to sleep, I should just go to bed earlier.

Easier said than done. My room is also placed in very close proximity to a fraternity house. I have nothing against fraternities, but this particular nameless one is very noisy. I mildly minded when a large group of sorority girls surrounded the house and commenced singing and doing cheers, making it difficult for me to continue a phone conversation; however, the straw that broke the camel's back was when someone in the frat house listened to "Neil Diamond Live In Concert" VERY LOUDLY, AND UNTIL 3:30 A.M.! This person also rewound the tape to hear "In America" (or whatever that damned song is called) OVER 12 TIMES!!! I AM LIVING A LIFE IN HELL!!! I won't even mention my neighbor who listens to Johnny Cash.

Okay, I'm fine now; all this is to be expected in college. College is fun. Amazingly enough, you can also learn some interesting things in college (and not just every beer game known to man). Oops! I mentioned the "B-word" (beer). That's a no-no! Heaven forbid that any college student ever do something as vile and despicable as drink alcohol! (NOTICE: those last couple of lines are what is known as SARCASM).

However, regardless of the law, people will find alcohol somewhere. A lot of people undertake drinking primarily because this is the first time that they are away from Mommy and Daddy and their rules. It happens. It happened to me and a hell of a lot of other people. If you so choose to act that way, so be it. Don't be stupid and drive while intoxicated, or commit vandalism, or get into fights, or commit some pseudo-sexual act that more than likely all attending parties will regret. If people want to drink, they'll find a way.

But this leads me to some fatherly advice to all you freshmen (and women) who might by chance be reading this column: Spend your first semester busting your butt for good grades, then have some fun. It is damned near impossible to raise your cumulative grade point average when it starts out very low. I know. I am currently paying for my stupidity as a drunken freshman. LEARN FROM MY MISTAKES! End of advice.
